Q. Bogey-free day. It looked pretty effortless out there. A lot of fairways, a lot greens. How did it feel inside the ropes for you?

LILIA VU: Yeah, I think I just stayed in my bubble. My caddie kind of knew I was kind of stressed this morning, and on the range he just said, just hit your start lines and I'll handle the rest. We're going to be okay.

I think that definitely gave me a sense of comfort. I wasn't worried too much about the golf. I was kind of more focused on my body stuff and trying to get through the round without any pain and just stay strong throughout.

Q. It sounded like that might be an obstacle you have overcome in the past; still lingering. I remember this time last year that was very much a theme with you. What has been the process over the last few weeks coming into this week?

LILIA VU: Yeah, I feel like I've been trying to get in tune with my body. I'm not in pain anymore. I'm just waiting for the power to kick in a little bit. I think that's something that's kind of been lacking, but I just focused on staying true to my process and just playing golf.

Q. You make it sound so easy. I know we've got 36 holes remaining. What kind of mindset are you taking into the weekend?

LILIA VU: I think I'm just going to keep it the same. Not too much pressure on the golf and let all the putts drop.
