Quick Quotes (2)

Q. Can you talk me through your round today?

MINJEE LEE: It was a bit up-and-down. I started with a birdie but I just kind of hit a few loose drives here and there, and put myself in positions that I didn't really want to be in, but kind of scrambled around, made a lot of up-and-downs, and made the two birdies on the par 5, 8 and then on 10. They were nice to keep the momentum going.

I feel like I hit it pretty decent, like my irons, I putted pretty well. Probably wasn't close enough to have like those knock-in birdies. Hopefully come the weekend, I can hit it closer and have some more kick-in birdies.

Q. You've had good finishes here. How nice to be back on this course?

MINJEE LEE: I feel like the course doesn't get easier when you come back because it's always pristine and always in great condition. I don't think there's a blade of grass out of place.

I always enjoy coming to Singapore, the food is always great and the hospitality, and everyone who comes out is so respectful. They all support us and want us to do so well. So I think it's always a lovely stop on our schedule.

Q. And you'll be debuts on Netflix.

MINJEE LEE: Yeah, I think I did maybe three -- two, like, sit down interviews. I was watching Min Woo play a little bit in his tournaments, and he came out -- Min Woo came out to shadow, and we did a little vice versa there. The episode is actually out already, so I've seen it. I think it's great. It's more about Min Woo and Wyndham's journey to the Olympics, and a little bit of me. Hopefully the next Full Swing we can get more women on there.

Q. What was it like seeing yourself on camera and watching yourself on Netflix?

MINJEE LEE: I feel like I have a great voice to get people to go to sleep. I'm not sure, just very calm. I guess the type of interview I did is very meaningful and deep. I think that's good. That's the way I wanted it to be portrayed, anyway, with the questions they asked me. It was nice.

Q. Is it cool for the opportunity to see golf grow in bigger streams?

MINJEE LEE: I think so. I think this is just for the beginning for the women's game. They started with the PGA TOUR, and hopefully they can get some LPGA players on there on full episodes. It's just the beginning and we are just breaking that ground.
