Quick Quotes

Q. Bogey free 63, nice way to end the tournament. If we can get some comments on your play.

ADAM SCOTT: Yeah, there was a lot of good play this week. I'll probably look back on Friday and think about what maybe could have been if I'd just been a little tidier out there in the wind. But two good weeks in a row. Going into the PGA, I'm looking forward to next week, and hopefully get a little closer.

Q. Do you feel like you are getting closer just after the two solid weeks, kind of rebounding from not the start of the season that you were hoping for?

ADAM SCOTT: Yeah, I think you just move a little slower as you're a bit older, but this is the time of year you want to be playing good. Ideally you kind of start playing really great in March, but it's six or eight weeks later and there's still a lot of big golf coming up with the PGA right in front of my mind.

Q. Is there anything specific with the game that feels like it's constantly improving?

ADAM SCOTT: I think actually all areas overall on the week and last week are improving. The putting is great, and it's all feeling a bit better. Some days the stats don't say it's great, but then the next day my approach play turns around and it's really good, and I hit almost every green today.

You know, if I can keep building on that and put four of those days together, then I think a good thing will happen.

Q. A lot of golf to be played just the last few holes, but as of now Jason Day is in the lead by one. He's been searching for a win, kind of like you are for the last few years. Knowing him, what would it mean for him to win, just kind of based on what he's gone through the last few years?

ADAM SCOTT: Well, I think the point he's at in his career, it's really all he's trying to do. He's obviously set out and really worked hard on his golf swing the last couple years, and he's stayed incredibly patient, I think, and chipped away at it and got it to a place where he may not say he's not satisfied, but it's looking pretty good.

The validation of sticking with it, I think, is something at this point that he'll take a lot out of, and when you're as talented as Jason, the sky's the limit, once the confidence comes through winning like that.
