Quick Quotes

Q. It's a sad week, end of the season but an ex-exciting week and right here on your doorstep. How do you feel after a full week of Abu Dhabi?

TOMMY FLEETWOOD: Yeah, I feel. Win week of the season to go, like you say. I still feel fresh, still feel motivated and really ready to give it my all in the last week of of the season.

So it's been a great season but yeah, we've got one more week to go, and we'll just keep taking it one day at a time.

Q. DP World has extended its partnership with the Tour through 2035. How important is long-term sustainability and support like this for players and the future of the game?

TOMMY FLEETWOOD: Absolutely. I remember the announcement when DP World -- when the tour became the DP World Tour, and all of us as professional golfers that play out here, we have been so grateful that the support they have shown and giving us the chance to live out our dreams and do our job.

For me as an ambassador, I get to see up close the vision they have for the future of the game, all the work that goes into it and all the support that they do. I think I'm very proud of that personally. But for us all as a tour, so, so grateful for what's already happened and looking forward to the future as well.

Q. We've seen new tournaments and growth in emerging golf markets in recent seasons, and you won, of course, the inaugural DP World Tour India Championship. How exciting is it for you to see the game reach new fans on a global scale?

TOMMY FLEETWOOD: Absolutely. I think you look at the potential of the growth of the game in these regions on and these areas and where we are trying to go with it and, I think I'm very proud to be part of it and be part of growth. That's what we all want to do, that's our job as well.

As much as we have our individual careers, we want to leave the game in a better place and DP World Tour doing an amazing job of that with us, and I'm one of the lucky ones that gets to take the game to all these parts of the world and showcase it.
