Q. Niall, yesterday you mentioned making more memories for Amy this week. Pro-Am for her yesterday, first tee shot today. We've seen the awe on your face when around her this week. Why does she inspire you and what was that moment like on the first tee today, seeing her hit the first shot, from your vantage point?

NIALL HORAN: It was so incredible and I am so thankful Amy made the trip over. She stands for everything this event is about and is an amazing example of someone who doesn't let anything get in her way. For her to hit the opening tee shot was a proud moment for me and the team at Modest Golf.

Q. We witnessed a great virtual surprise and reaction video with you and Amy earlier this week on social media. Amy seems to have a special glow about her. What does it mean to you when you can help make someone's dreams come true and do you feel there is a mutual respect/admiration for one another, the talents that you both have as human beings?

NIALL HORAN: It was great to meet Amy finally having tried to make it happen prior to the pandemic. I respect her so much and think she will continue to inspire so many people to get into the game. She is such a credit to her whole family. A very special young lady.
