Q. A remarkable end to the match there. Let's start at the 17th green. Talk me through that putt.

JENNIFER KUPCHO: I don't know, walking up to the green, honestly, like, I just thought, like, okay, during all these practice rounds, I'd just get up and whack it. So, yeah, really didn't read it. I was, like, all right, we'll just give it a run, make sure we get it there, but what the heck it went in. That was insane.

Q. I think it was about 90 feet. Is that the longest putt you can remember holing in your career?

JENNIFER KUPCHO: Maybe. Actually, my million-dollar putt last year might have been just as long. So it was pretty exciting, yeah. Insane.

Q. It was in the risk-and-reward challenge on the PGA Tour late in the season. And then 18, I mean, just as important. Talk us through that one.

JENNIFER KUPCHO: Yeah, I mean, for me, it's a lot easier when I can know which way it breaks. So if it breaks more, I have the line way down and, yeah, just to put a good stroke on that, that was amazing. Great finish to the match.

Q. Lindy, you've been in some nervous situations in your career. You think about the Chevron Championship. How were the nerves coming down the stretch here?

LINDY DUNCAN: I felt pretty good, actually. I felt like I was hitting it pretty good all day and just tried to keep hitting fairways and greens and have chances. So I felt like I played pretty well.

Q. Just speak to what Jennifer did over the last couple of holes.

JENNIFER KUPCHO: Hey, she was amazing too.

LINDY DUNCAN: She was insane. Absolutely insane, those putts she made. Oh, my gosh, 17 I'll never forget.

Q. Now, she was shushing the crowd after I think it was the 10th hole, but the real shushing came with those last two putts. Talk about how important it was to do that late here because it was really noisy.

LINDY DUNCAN: Yeah, the crowds were so loud and so many Europe chants, and we really did a good job, I felt like. We just kind of stayed in our bubble and we were the same kind of pace all day and it was just so much fun to play out there with you.

JENNIFER KUPCHO: Yeah, it was amazing. I think we just did our job and, yeah, they're out there chanting -- my team won't shut up now, but (laughing). Yeah, they're out there chanting and it gets a bit annoying at some points, but you just kind of hang in there and I think we did that amazing today.
