Q. Tell me about that left-handed shot. Do you practice that shot a lot?

DANIELLE KANG: I believe that when you practice, you can get creative in how you play golf shots, and watching some people do some cool things, whether it's backhanding it or hitting it through their legs, whatever it may be, I've always kind of -- I don't practice it a lot, but sometimes when you're up against a tree or hazard when I'm practicing, I don't take it out of play, I actually just play from there.

I was taking a little bit longer there. I know people think it's slow, but I couldn't get the feel because the rough was kind of thick. It was a good putt. I was kind of bummed I missed the putt.
