Joan Ible

Quick Quotes

Q. Can you talk about how much you've enjoyed this experience of training with Hannah?

JOAN IBLE: It's brilliant because my son plays golf and I've never had an interest in playing for years. I usually drop him off at the club.

With Hannah, the difference is I was actually able to hit the ball. I couldn't do it, and the way they explained how to do it just connected. So ever since then, I've just started practising. I love it.

Q. Do you think you'll be training with why your son now?

JOAN IBLE: That's part of the plan because he's actually very good. So I took him, it's a natural gift that he has, so I do hope the passion will come later on so at least we can play together. That's the plan. Not so sure whether a 15-year-old boy is going to be playing with his Mum but that is the plan.

I used to take him to the range and say do this, and do that, whereas now I have more respect for the game and understand it's not as easy as it looks. Even that alone, the way I communicate with him, I've changed, because I'm getting to understand more what the game is about.

Yeah, I do love it.
