Quick Quotes

Q. Joined by Haeran Ryu after her first round at the Mizuho Americas Open. Great round for you today. What worked so well?

HAERAN RYU: Yeah, today is pretty good again, so today the front nine holes my shot is really good and my putt is pretty good too, so I got five birdies.

But I think the back nine start little wind, so it's too hard to read the -- to pick the club, so I don't have a lot birdies there.

But it's still good. Yeah, that's fine.

Q. Curious what is the mindset when you come to a new tournament after you just won the previous one?

HAERAN RYU: Yeah, it's always same. I just focus for my swing and then just keep fairway. Yeah, always same.

Q. For you, did you have to adjust your strategy this week because it's a little damp and a little wet out there?

HAERAN RYU: No. Always same. Just keep fairway and keep green and then just make easier, yeah.

Q. What's been the key to your consistency these past three weeks?

HAERAN RYU: Yeah, I think that key is more my mindset more easier. Like so hard to read the wind, but I just want to think about just keep fairway so easier than think about my swing. That's my key for three weeks in a row.

Q. So you simplified your process?

HAERAN RYU: Yeah. I feels like, yeah, I thought not too much thinking, so I just thinking for my swing and my arms -- I just want to try to more consistence for my arms with my swings. That's it.

Q. How do you keep this going?

HAERAN RYU: Yeah, just practice. Yeah, that's it.
