Q. All seemed to be kick started by a nice little birdie, eagle, birdie stretch from 13 through 15.

JASMINE SUWANNAPURA: Yep. They surprisingly move the tee box down on 14 and I got lucky, because Emily know what she's going. She hit her 3-wood right on the green and I'm like, okay, I'll just take a chance and hit driver, and next thing you know it just was (indiscernible) pin and have 12 foot for eagle, so, yeah.

Q. Doesn't seem to be a golf course that suits any one particular style of play. Assuming that's one that really fits your eye nicely.

JASMINE SUWANNAPURA: Yeah, well, I had a chance to play six holes on practice round and we got rain delay and stuff. Yesterday during the pro-am I was walking outside the ropes on the back nine, which I don't know the green, I don't know the course, I just walk on the cart path.

I didn't expect anything super low today, but everything is coming together and have a good round.

Q. Lower expectations sometimes work. You've made 13 of 15 cuts since June; only one top 10. What specifically do you have to continue to do really well to be in contention Sunday?

JASMINE SUWANNAPURA: My putting has been better. I change my driver so it's been a little longer. Overall, I don't mind it being consistent, playing, make the cut, and I got sick, not feel well in Dallas, so to play in Asian Swing and post a low round today was pretty nice.
