Quick Quotes

Q. Nick, a solid start for you yesterday and today. Just what has been working for you the past couple days here?

NICK TAYLOR: I putted really nice yesterday. Drove it better today. I think I hit every fairway, so that was nice. I had a few opportunities probably early in that second nine and wasn't able to capitalize. But to finish with birdie on 7 and 8 was nice. Pretty solid day. If I keep driving like I am I'll give myself a lot of chances.

Q. You find yourself in contention after a very mentally exhausting week with the Presidents Cup. What have you learned about yourself through that experience and can you talk about going from a week like that and playing so well?

NICK TAYLOR: Yeah, I felt like when I scheduled it out that hopefully I was going to ride some momentum from the Presidents Cup. It had a lot of similarities coming here, almost like winning a golf tournament, like a lot of energy drained last week coming in. So managing my time was important and I thought I did a pretty good job of that. I came here, it's a pretty comfortable golf course, and my game feels pretty good.

Q. Has that changed any of your goals for the rest of the season?

NICK TAYLOR: No, the plan was here and Japan and then reassess after that. But have a couple really good weeks these next two is the plan and then hopefully take some time off.

Q. You're done kind of early, what's the plan for the rest of the day?

NICK TAYLOR: Just relax. Maybe take a nap, we'll see.
