MARCO SIMONE
ROME, ITALY

Q. Is the Ryder Cup as incredible as you thought it would be?

LUDVIG ÅBERG: I think so. The crowds were unbelievable here today, and we could really feel that support and that's what we need to keep winning points here in Rome, so it was a lot of fun today.

Q. How does it feel whether you're out here are the energy from the crowd and the momentum Europe had, how much did you really ride that through the course that match?

VIKTOR HOVLAND: It was such a big difference compared to Whistling Straits. Normally I keep my head down and just play, but I'm trying to really get the crowds going and just use them because they want you to play well and they want to support you. So it was such a good start, and we're going to keep it going.
