Q. Always nice to be standing with the reigning U.S. Women's Open champ. What does it mean to you to hear that you are the Women's Open champ?

MAJA STARK: Still doesn't really feel real. You know, I've always wanted to have that, but now that it's happened I'm like, okay, my life is still normal.

Yeah, it's weird.

Q. We talked earlier about you're sort of trying to figure out what's next because you had this big dream and you achieved it. How long do you think it's going to take and what the process is going to be to sort of get you back hungry again?

MAJA STARK: Well, I think yesterday when we started playing and I had a tough start I was like, okay, but I just won the U.S. Open, so it's fine.

But then the little competitive demon came alive inside me, so now I want to win this one, too, like real bad. I'm back on track now.

Q. That's good to know. You recently moved to Nashville and you have a nice studio apartment. People were asking what are you going to do now, are you going to buy a house, are you going to do something bigger, but you kind of live a more simplistic life, isn't that right?

MAJA STARK: Yeah. I don't want to buy a problem, so I mean, and my lease is up in February next year I think, so I'm not going to try to do something stupid.

You know, I keep saying like I liked what I had before and I like what I have now, so I don't know.
